

I wonder...

This makes me imagine...

A rocket, launched yesterday from a private site in northern China, is missing. Yesterday the Internet was alive with rumours of a secret manned space mission. Today NASA and the Russian Federal Space Agency both confirmed that a rocket did take off but denied it was theirs. The rocket entered high orbit and then disappeared into 'deep space'. No manned rocket has left Earth's orbit since Apollo 17 in 1972.

I predict...

This reminds me of...
