

Monday

You can use any object in your house or your pencil case. Example objects:

Questions to think about as you write your letter:

Why is your object writing to you?

How is the object treated, is it looked after properly?

What do you do to your object that it might have something to say about?

What would the object say if it could speak and were human?

How is your object feeling because of the way it is used? (happy, sad, annoyed, frustrated, lonely)

What will your object ask you to do in future?

Mr Flipchart
Under the towel
Stationery Lane
H3LP M35
22nd June 2020

Dear Miss Burnett

I'm writing to you because I am feeling completely abandoned, neglected and well confused to be honest with you. I need answers and NOW.

So here's what's up. First of all, we were best pals. You used me every day at school and I was always there when you needed me. When computer let you down, you always had me to write on. Then suddenly it all changed a couple of months ago. You brought me home and I was like ooooo okay she loves me and can't live without me but then you left me untouched for days at a time. Now, I sit in your room hidden under a soaking, dirty towel most of the time. I can't even see now. Do you know how frightening that is? I just sit here in darkness waiting and hoping you will one day use me again. Will you or have you found someone else? I just don't understand. It is because I am not new and shiny anymore?

Sorry to bother you but I feel the situation is getting worse every day, I just need to know WHY?

From your forgotten friend, Flipchart.

Remember to use the features of a letter!

Address and Date Greeting Reason for Writing

Questions Ending Conclusion Signing off and Name

★ Conjunctions ★ Paragraphs

Miss Burnett's
Flipchart